Global Talent Culminates in Kross

Cheers were heard well into the night for all the acts that appeared on the International Showcase last night, with talent from across the camp being enjoyed by all.

The show began with a rousing rock-out by the Victoria Pacific Explorers. Full, of energy, they bounced around the stage with stylish cardboard guitars and even more stylish haircuts.

Poland entertained us with a fun acoustic number called the Raspberry Song, after which Sweden provided us with traditional dancing.

The Connecticut Trash Can band was an innovative and entertaining pile of rootin' tootin' fun, to which the crowd responded well, especially to their rendition of Scotland the Brave.

Lots of Scottish music, especially piping, were sprinkled throughout the show. One of the most entertaining was Joyce from Hong Kong, who's bagpipe performance was very impressive.

Gibraltar brought the house down with a hip-shaking, groove-making, dance-filled spectacular called "Bamba". Everyone joined in enthusiastically, and the stage was over-run with fans joining in and wiggling their hips in time.

South Africa started by calling the sky spirits and provided and an innovative and unique performance.

Austria performed the 1951 Jamboree song and Russia provided us with a traditional dancer and backing singers.

A gymnastic sing-song spectacle was delivered by Japan, who threw their bandanas Tom Jones style at the end.

The evening was rounded off with some Gaelic singing by Liam from MacLean, and were piped out to a re-sounding applause.

And of course, we can't forget to mention the awesomely anthemic singing of Robertson subcamp's Uncle Sandy, who once again had the crowds in the palm of his hands performing "Dead Skunk" and an original song he composed for Blair Atholl a few years previously.

A fantastic evening which truly represents the international nature of the Jamborete, oozing talent and spectacle.

Keep Keltic Konnections Keltic!

Jamie Lemetti enjoys painting on rocks in his spare time so he loved Keltic Konnections.

Some of us find painting rocks very relaxing and spiritual (and also like sniffing paints)!

Scouts have found making Chess Pieces "quality" and want to be challenged to chess matches during evenings on the sub camp!

Dear Auntie Freeze

Dear Auntie Freeze,
Our problem is that even though we try really hard, we don't seem to be fitting in. Everyone seems to judge us and don't take time to get to know us! Can you help us?
From Callum

Chill, you will make friends and hopefully one who will always be a close friend. That is what Blair Atholl is all about.

Auntie Freeze

Dear Auntie Freeze,
I have a problem. I am a lonely hearted boy and all I want to find is my true love on this camp but it does not seem to be working. I don't want to be unoriginal as I want a girl to like me for the person I am. Where am I going wrong?
From anon.

The camp is short; don't try too hard, enjoy the camp and if someone comes along, then enjoy the moment, laugh and have fun with friends and make those memories.

Auntie Freeze

Dear Auntie Freeze
I have a girl friend in the USA and I haven't any money to get something for her. What should I do

Internet Cabin Hours

The Internet Cabin hours are as follows:

Café Crazy

A man is sitting in a café having a drink when he hears a little voice say "nice tie". He looks around for the voice, but there's no one but the waiter. "Did you say something?", he asked him.

He sits a while longer and again hears the voice. "Nice shirt."

The waiter denied saying anything, so the man tells him "see I've been hearing this voice, telling me I have a nice shirt and tie!"

"Oh!", says the waiter, "it must be the peanuts, and they're complimentary."

Sub Camp Snippets

A certain Scout from Dundee got a postcard yesterday that simply reminded him to 'wash behind his ears and brush his teeth', Mum

Backwoods Cooking

In the morning we made Irish stew, Texas platter, and a cowboy dinner. The only equipment they used was a knife, fork, and tinfoil. John and his friends thought that the activity was okay, because he had a sore leg; he also thought that the food was okay but nothing great. In the afternoon, they cooked chicken on stones underneath the ground.

Satellite Camp Opened By Chief

We were officially opened by John Kennedy, the Camp Chief this morning. A magnificent turn out of all 276 campers braved the Scottish weather to witness the ceremony, which went with a bang (NOT) from the satellite cannon.

Satellite Camp Goes International

We have Catalonian visitors. Flew into Glasgow, stayed in Troon, travelled to Stirling then Perth and Pitochry. Staying in Satellite Camp until Monday. Then off to Fort William to attempt to ascend Ben Nevis and to Edinburgh for a couple of days before returning home. Welcome to our Catalonian friends.

Antlers Ahoy

The 62nd Forth Valley (Harbut) troop have a magnificent set of antlers over their camp site entrance. A passing Scout was heard to remark "my next neighbour has antlers like that"! We're now wondering if his name is John Deere and just how he gets in and out of the car!

Having a great time

Say Alex and Tim from 1st Fochabers.
"The country fair is good and full of really friendly people and lots of things to do. We have met loads of young people from many countries

Blair Castle Visit

I went to Blair Atholl Castle and I liked it a lot because you get to find out lots of stuff, like who lives there and who came over. There is a small shop and a place where you can relax

Magnificent Campfire

What do Michael Schumacher, Gene Kelly, and Bluebeard the Pirate all have in common? Well, they were all at the Satellite campfire last night. Fochabes and Dougie McPhee gave us all a laugh with the Schumacher Shuffle. We sang in the rain and jumped aboard that famous pirate ship. We reckon the subcamp will have to go some to beat our yell!!! It's magnificent!

Nature Trail Fun!

We all really enjoyed the nature trail. It was a great walk and the scenery was beautiful. Our favourite part was watching the deer walk around the field.

The Statue of Diana, the goddess of hunting was interesting. We were all fascinated by the giant redwood trees and how its soft spongy bark allows you to punch them without really hurting yourself. We followed the trail all the way up to the whim, which is a nice view-point. Our guide also pointed out to us a type of fungi which was growing from a tree and Kristofer from our group could name it as a Turkey Wing.

We also enjoyed the exercise and MAYBE we will go to bed early!

Treasure Hunt

Today, Liam, Jack, Joe, and I went on the treasure hunt in Blair Castle and in the village just down the road while we are at the big Scout Jamboree. It was really good, but wet, however, we didn't care one bit! We are here until Monday, and are having great fun. This is our first proper Scout camp.
